8:30 a.m.  Lawyering: Recognizing the Waves of Stress and Anxiety Strategies to Overcome

According to a 2016 study by the Hazelden Betty Ford Foundation and the ABA Commission on Lawyer Assistance Programs, 19 percent of lawyers experience anxiety, and 23 percent experience chronic stress. Nancy Nolin, a licensed psychotherapist since 2007, explains how attorneys can recognize the hidden signals of stress and anxiety in their practice. Doing more with less time is a constant struggle, but there are strategies and tools that allow lawyers to take time out of their day to take care of themselves and be a better lawyer because of it. A mentally healthy lawyer will be more productive. Learn how to incorporate music, mindfulness, and other resources proven to decrease symptoms of stress and anxiety.

10:45 a.m.  Progress was all right. It just went on too long - James Thurber

Nelson Page, J.D. will discuss the future of the practice of law. Artificial Intelligence, legal apps, limited licensed paralegals, alternative service providers, and other examples of the coming changes that will transform the practice of law. The presentation will be a survey of how the practice of law has evolved in the last decade and where it is likely to go in the near future. Subjects covered will include the end of the legal profession’s monopoly, alternative ways of delivering legal services, and the impact of upcoming technology on lawyers and their clients.

11:45 a.m.  Lunch

12:30 p.m.  The Duty of Technological Competence or “Never trust a computer you can’t throw out a window.” - Steve Wozniak

It isn’t possible to practice law today without technology. The Model Rules of Professional Conduct now require that a lawyer must “keep abreast of changes in the law and its practice, including the benefits and risks associated with relevant technology.” So how do you acquire technological competence and what do you do with it once you have it? Nelson Page J.D. discusses the ethics of technological competence, including recent issues in cybersecurity, the duty to maintain confidential information, discovery in the computer age, conflicts of interest in a world without borders, and the use of technology to run your law practice.

2:30 P.M.  BREAK

2:45 p.m.  Diversity and Inclusion Issues

We will watch selected scenes from TV shows and movies that illustrate lawyer problems in addressing issues of diversity and inclusion and then discuss what attendees see and hear from the clips. Clifford Scott-Rudnick, J.D. discusses how to change the behavior of the characters presented and suggest ways to change the behavior of the attendees in addressing these issues in their law practices.
